I'm human

West wing requiem transcript

Requiem west wing.

As Leo's funeral procession begins, tears stream down the faces of those gathered. The military honor guard leads the casket out of the cathedral, accompanied by President Bartlet and other familiar figures from his staff. Santos is faced with the loss of his running mate. The episode starts with Leo's funeral, where mourners are overcome with emotion. A military honor guard escorts the casket from the cathedral, with pallbearers including President Jed Bartlet, Charlie Young, President-Elect Matthew Santos, Barry Goodwin, and Josh Lyman. After a military funeral, Leo is laid to rest at Arlington National Cemetery. Toby attends the service, while Abigail Bartlet notes that Leo would not have liked all the fuss surrounding his passing. President-Elect Santos informs Josh that he has asked Barry Goodwin to lead his transition team. The episode features Alan Alda as Arnold Vinick, Stockard Channing as Abigail Bartlet, Kristin Chenoweth as Annabeth Schott, Dulé Hill as Charlie Young, Allison Janney as C.J. Cregg, Joshua Malina as Will Bailey, Janel Moloney as Donna Moss, Richard Schiff as Toby Ziegler, John Spencer as Leo McGarry, Bradley Whitford as Josh Lyman, Jimmy Smits as Matthew Santos, and Martin Sheen as President Bartlet. Special guest stars include Mary-Louise Parker as Amy Gardner, Timothy Busfield as Danny Concannon, Gary Cole as Bob Russell, Emily Procter as Ainsley Hayes, and Lily Tomlin as Deborah Fiderer. The article discusses Season 7 of the TV show "The West Wing". The season finale, which is episode 22, is titled "Tomorrow". The main cast members who are missing from Leo's funeral service are Sam Seaborn, Kate Harper, and Mandy Hampton. This is the only episode in the season where all 13 main cast members appear in the opening credits. The article also provides a list of episodes for Season 7, including their titles, directors, writers, and original air dates. The episodes cover topics such as politics, personal relationships, and social issues. Some additional details mentioned in the article include: * Mary McCormack does not appear in one episode. * There is an "undecideds" themed episode that explores the issue of undecided voters. * The season finale is titled "Tomorrow". * The production codes for each episode are provided. * The viewership ratings for each episode, measured in millions, are also listed. TV show schedule for Season 2 of the TV series "The West Wing" - airing from March to May 2006. The season premiered on March 12, 2006 with an episode titled "The Cold," and concluded on May 14, 2006, with "Tomorrow." Throughout this period, nine other episodes were broadcast: "Two Weeks Out," "Welcome to Wherever You Are," "Election Day Part I" and II, "Requiem," "Transition," "The Last Hurrah," "Institutional Memory," and the season finale, a highly watched episode titled "Tomorrow."